

Biodata Ward Warmerdam

Ward Warmerdam is a Senior Researcher at Profundo, where he leads the financial and economic research team. He defended his PhD thesis “Having, Giving, Taking: Understanding China’s Development Cooperation in Africa” at the international Institute of Social Studies (ISS) in 2015. He has published numerous articles and book chapters on China’s development cooperation; China’s aid, trade and investment in Africa; China’s foreign policies and foreign policy tools; and, China’s ethnic minorities. He carried out field work in Uganda, surveying Chinese entrepreneurs and foreign aid projects. In his current work he often researches Chinese infrastructure projects and China’s commercial finance to a variety of commodities, providing research and advice to NGOs engaging with Chinese stakeholders to promote environmental, social and governance issue considerations in their domestic and overseas activities.”